A new wonder of the world?

In the area around the Bosnian city of Visoko there were many stories about underground caves and tunnels. Local legends seem to point at a secret hidden under the with trees and other vegetations covered hill next to the city. Enthusiast Semir Osmanagich (1960), cultural anthropologist and economist, was necessary to see a pyramid in this rectangular hill with its prominent orientation to the north. In 2005 he saw a striking similarity with pyramids he had studied around the world.

Is it possible – the question Osmanagich asks himself since 2005 – that the five pyramids in this valley are created by an European civilisation we know nothing about, and so history has to be rewritten? Most of the archeologists, geologists and egyptologists that reacted detest and loathe this idea. In their view the pyramidal hills are natural phenomena, and around Visoko people are just busy with pseudo-science.

The Egyptian pyramidologist Nabil Swelim accepted in 2007 the invitation to have a look at the supposed Bosnian pyramids with his own eyes. He describes the pressure he received from scientific colleagues to correct this idea of manmade hills. He says; 'When one side of a hill is straight, it could be Mother Nature's work. But when three sides are straight, you start to get curious as a researcher. And when you see this pattern in three other hills in the same area, it becomes really interesting. Something special is going on in the area around Visoko, albeit that with information nothing is clear about their origins.' Since 2005 250.000 visitors (40.000 in 2016) from 62 countries travelled to Visoko to see this new 'wonder of the world' themselves. Every two years there are scientific congresses in Visoko to evaluate recent discoveries.

Remarkable facts

0. All pyramid-hills are overgrown with soil, trees and bushes. Some of the sideslopes are damaged.

1. The five pyramids (Sam Osmanagich named them Sun, Moon, Dragon, Love and Earth) all have one side exactly pointing North (LIDAR-measure). The Sumpyramid is the highest known pyramid (220 meters) in the world. Moon is 190 meters high, Dragon 90 meters.

2. The tops of the Sun-, Moon- and Dragonpyramids form a equilateral triangle, 2170 meters distance from each other. During a period in summer the eveningshadow of the Sunpyramid covers completely the Moonpyramid.

3. There is a concrete cover on the sides of the pyramids. This concrete is harder (134 MPa) than modern concretes with lower water absorption (1%).

4. From the top of the Sunpyramid there is a pulsating beam of energy, 4,5 meters wide (28kHz). When you get higher above the pyramid (drone-measure) it gets stronger, this was measured never before. With a PIP-camera you can see vertical measurements of bio-energy. Also special ultra-sound-measurements are being done.

6. With geo-scantechinics they found a spiraling tunnelnetwork dozens of kilometers long, also under the pyramids. Some tunnels have large spaces.

7. Water has special qualities and healing effects.

8. In the tunnels near Ravne they found ceramic stones (biggest ever found). These stones are placed exactly above waterstreams. This has a neutralizing effect. Also they measured very high Bovis- values with healing effects.

And there are more puzzling facts being measured. Could we say that with our up-to-day scientific knowledge we hardly can or cannot clarify these facts? Maybe there are discoveries being done that could change scientific paradigma?

Akashic Records readers

With his scientific 'to measure is to know'- approach Sam Osmanagich met limits. That's why he added spiritual sources to his reasearch: socalled Akashic Records readers who can receive information by tuning in on our collective energetic consciousness (Akasha). This research was done in a controlled way: six clairvoyant women (who did not know about Osmanagich, did not know about each other, and also didn't have contact with each other) got the same questions about pyramids everywhere, including the Bosnian of course. The special and concurrent result is written in the book Ancient history from beyond the veil. Our own clairvoyant research near Visoko with Aafke Douma as reader has corresponding conclusions, and adds to knowledge about the area. In a new edition our experiences and readings will be added tot he book. On this unique location modern science works together with intuitive approaches, as ‘spiritual science’. Scientists that integrate spirituality in their work are taken more and more seriously these days. The dr. Sams among us will have the future?
