Invited by Daniel Fuente Iglesias and Javier Gonzalez Arias

The Gorfoli Pyramid shaped hill near Ávilés

Daniel presents the story of the estuary of Ávilés in Asturias.

Wednesday, 21 - 24.3.2018

View towards the estuary in Ávilés.

Here we have the view towards the Avilés estuary. It is the third largest port in the north of Spain.

The Submarine Avilés Canyon, along with the Corviro and La Gavieta canyons, make up a system of submarine canyons and more than 12 tributary canyons that join together and flow into the Bay of Biscay abyssal plain at a depth of more than 4,700 meters. Next to Earth's deepest abyss, the Mariana Trench (10,994m- 36,070 ft) located in the western Pacific Ocean, it counts as one of the deepest abyss's. You will not find it on Google Earth, as it has been air-brushed away.

<http://www.indemares.es/en/marine-areas/aviles-canyon-system>

The biodiversity in these submarine canyons is very high and more than 1,300 bottom-dwelling species have been inventoried to date. It is very common here to find giant dead squids of 7-10-11 meters washed on the beaches. In fact, there is a Giant Squid Museum here, where they keep some of them preserved in formaldehyde. They live in abyssal trenches and when they die, they float to the surface and then they get washed to the beaches by the currents. Sometimes there are also unknown species and unknown dead fish of the abyss seen on the beaches.

Here in Asturias there have also been UFO sightings and there was one such appearance no more than six months ago. It is quite usual in this area.

Personally, I also know a person who has confessed to me that there have been sightings of UFO's in this area, but it is not something that is usually presented in the media. I know 3 people who have told me about their experiences, usually linked with the Gorfolí and within this area, that they have seen them. Some of these friends see them regularly.

Daniel Fuente Iglesias, the guardian of the Pyramid

The 3 pyramid shaped peaks and The Gorfolí Pyramid on the left, seen from the east.

View from the cave in the rock, El Pico del Águila.

This is the one of the perspectives that we have of the Gorfolí, to the left (north/east side) and these other formations, when seen from the necropolis of Monte Aréo, the Neolithic Necropolis, gives the exact view of the three pyramids, and during the Summer Solstice, the sun sets right in the vertex of two of these mountains.

From here we have a pretty close view, from about 20 km and it is a most powerful sight.

Then we have another pyramidal formation, on the hillside we are standing on right now. Here we are at the base of one that is on the left, that one here, now it is a forest of partially burned eucalyptus trees. Here there was a fire a few of months ago. And then here we will see one of the caves, just below that rock there. This rock is like a big wall, which borders with another hill, the only one for kilometres around where the stones and rocks can be seen. It looks more like a quarry, than a natural formation. As if it had once been a place, from which large blocks of stone were removed. It looks like a quarry. If you look at all the hills around, they are covered with vegetation, except that one. There you will see that the rock is in plain sight and there are steps in sight and it looks as if was cut.

Now let's go and see the cave in the rock.

Visit to the Cave in the Rock "El Pico del Águila" with Daniel. (21.3.2018)

As at the Ravne Tunnels in Visoko, I also felt the presence of the cave guardians here. I greeted them silently and entered a tunnel for about 2-3 meters, when I had to descending a high step of about 50cm, where we arrived at T-shaped bifurcation. One tunnel that goes about 1,5 meters to the right, (which is taller, wider and easier to enter) but it suddenly leads down almost vertically towards an open space or chamber of about 2 x 2 m which lays at about 2 meters in a vertical depth. We found it covered with masses of broken rocks on the ground, which are not from this cave. It looks as if it was blocked and filled up on purpose.

Larger cave chamber to the right filled in with rocks on the floor.

The other tunnel goes to the left and it is much smaller in size, about 50 cm height and width. One can only enter it crawling on all four.

Daniel said: between the 1950s and 60s, one of our neighbours told us, that a small group of people came for several weeks and covered these caves.

While I was with Daniel inside the cave, I stopped filming with my movie camera, as we didn't have enough light, so I stuck it into my coat's left pocket. At one moment when we were ready to walk out again, while I had to step up a high step, my camera fell out of my pocket and it tumbled down the tunnel and into the open chamber about 2 meters below on top of the filled in rocks. I first thought it was a stone rolling down, but Dani told me it was my camera. I was surprised at my own calm reaction and intuitively knew it was going to be alright. Daniel felt bad about it and tried to rescue it with large sticks but I had to stop him doing this, as it was highly dangerous to slide down there without much light, except the mobile phone lantern. I felt very confident the camera was fine there. Then Daniel thought of a young friend of him and called him. We met Marco for lunch, who is a mountain climber and teaches survival courses in nature and together we returned with him in the afternoon.

With MARCO – My second visit to the Cave that afternoon

This time with Marco, climbing up a steep foot hill through a partly burned eucalyptus forest, I entered the tunnel again, and I saw to my astonishment how easily Marco had climbed down the steep tunnel, where he picked up my camera.

When Marco handed my camera back to me, I was confirmed and very happy that nothing had happened to it. It had fallen right in the middle on top of a large sturdy battery attached in the back. I was so pleased and thanked the cave guardians for taking care of it.

I handed it back to Marco and he started filming the square chamber below. Also from that space below, there is another small tunnel that runs under and parallel in the direction towards the entrance of the cave. This small tunnel can be entered only by crawling into it and after a meter or so, it was also blocked with stones.

Was there something, something they discovered and took away with them, who knows?

Then Marco (the Spiderman) climbed back up quickly, and decided to crawl on his tummy with my camera into the left tunnel.

This smaller tunnel leading to the left is about 3-4 meters, when it suddenly makes a 90° turn to the right and continues for about 1 meter, when it suddenly also goes vertically down into the ground. As with the first chamber, this tunnel is also blocked and filled in with stones and rocks.

Tunnel turning to the left

Once out of the cave again, Marco told me:

On the east side of the Gorfolí Pyramid, we also know that there is another entrance to a cave, which is hollow, where there is a wall that seems to have been artificially manipulated, and there is an entrance. In those days it was covered, and when you passed by there, you could not see it. It was covered with bushes, but at the right time, we will be able to see it. This is what they told us about 3 - 4 years ago. I don't know, maybe since we recently had those fires, something could be seen now. There were also fires in the back of the pyramid (north face) last year, I don't know if they have reforested it now. (It was not the right timing in those days.) Let's see if they allow us to go and see it now these days. If they let us, those Beings that protect it.

There are many people around here who believe that there are these Beings that protect these places, the so-called Guardians. “Everything will be opened and revealed at the right time, when they allow us to open them”.

There is also a large network of tunnels running across this whole valley and there is also another cave nearby, which is also difficult to find, as it is all overgrown with wild thorny bushes, it is called the Written Cave, and we have been told that there is an underground lake below it, there is a large body of water.

An Interdimensional Gate or Portal

Here between the province of Asturias and Cantabria, there might be in other places too, but we know that there exists a very large Inter-Dimensional Gate. There was once an old mine there, you can see them marked as “ancient gold mines” and it is located within the mountain range of the Picos de Europa, between Asturias and Cantabria.

Here in Asturias there is also another area, (where there is another inter-dimensional doorway) I do not know if it is the same one or not, which borders with the province of León and Cantabria, and inside there is a huge subterranean lake. This one is all built of limestone, and this lake has white stones. I was told that in the near future, it will be used as a fuel. I do not know exactly what it is, but you can generate energy with them. There are surely people who know about this, but it is a hidden knowledge, and someday it will come out. To get there, there have to be people specialized in speleology, and they have to know very well where it is. It is all in the area of the “Los Picos de Europa” mountain, which is the Cantabrian mountain range.

It is a very powerful area and there are several portals. At least that one, which is between Cantabria and Asturias is enormous. I do not know exactly where it is, but I know it through a friend, who is an intuitive empath, she has a highly developed genetic gift and was born with that talent.

In the afternoon, we met up with José Antonio Fernandez, who came to join us from Madrid. He had already been twice a volunteer in Bosnia and is presently helping me out with some video translations and editing.

Later that afternoon, view from Daniel’s “Belvedere” site, he told us:

The Gorfolí pyramid shaped hill

Topographic map of el Gorfolí and immediate surroundings

A triangle formation between El Gorfolí, the cave entrance to the Pico del Águila and the hill of Peñamenendres, where the written cave is below.

The word Gorfolí is considered to come from French, and means Triumphant God or Triumphant Sun! This could be a clear clue that this pyramid-shaped hill called Gorfolí is dedicated to the Sun God, like the Pyramid of the Sun in Visoko and in Teotihuacán.

The river Arlos, which meanders along the valley at the southern foothill of the Gorfolí pyramid, comes ethnologically from Ar = house and Los = is the linguistic evolution of Luch. And Luch was the greatest God of the ancient profane Pantheon. Then we could consider that Arlos or Arluch is the House of Luch or the House of Zeus or Sun God of this ancient pantheon.

Nearby on a plain or small plateau called Monte Areo, is the second largest Archaeological Site or Neolithic Necropolis in Europe. There are only two dolmens that are in sight right now. It's not like Antequera (Málaga), they are not excavated, but it's full of mounds. A friend told me that he was there during the Summer Solstice on June 21st, and that from there, this group of mountains looks like three peaks, and the sun sets at the apex between two peaks.

On the hill of “Peñamenendres” that we are going to see later, is where there was a pre-Romanesque Neolithic Fortified Settlement. It is documented and registered, and where that girl told us that there was a passage between a fort and a cave, and that there was a large cavern or lake of underground water which lies below that hill.

Once talking to a neighbour of a house nearby, the big house, I asked him about the Written Cave, he told me that he was quite incredulous, but hey, he came to tell me in broad strokes, that everyone said that there was a Golden Calf, and that people had seen a golden calf at the entrance, but that was a legend of the people. He was already more than eighty years old, and he had made the decision not to believe it, but what is known is that every time people talk about a golden calf, they usually talk about places where Muslims or others who lived around this area, had buried their wealth. It is a typical Asturian tradition, that the locals like going for treasure-hunting. They have that principle, that every time someone from a village tells you about a cave where they had seen a golden calf, there were or probably still are hidden treasures. This is the mythological part.

But it is true that this Written Cave is also commented about. It is believed that there are Muslim riches buried inside, that when they left after the re-conquest, they had locked up their riches in caves and such, as they could not take it away with them, because of the haste they had to flee. It is a mythical legend here in Asturias, but it does not necessarily mean that the possible riches (in quotes, we do not speak of gold but, of possibly another value, it does not stop being related to that geographical part of the cave).

Throughout this area there are tunnels, that are probably connected through underground pools of water as well. My grandmother had told me that there was a gap there, that led to a tunnel, but that goes very deep.

Many caves have been silenced in their time, they have been covered up and people have been secretive about them, because after the civil war they have been used as places where they kept weapons, so that the national troops did not find shotguns or weaponry in anyone's house, so they would not be accused of being Red, right? Then those caves were used and they were covered and then they were not talked about anymore.

Like one of those, which is covered or hidden in my town. I tell you, when we are going to go to visit my town this afternoon, there is a house called LA CUEVA, (the cave) but nobody knows where the cave is, although the house is called La Cueva. A friend of mine who is a blind grandfather never saw the cave, he told me he could take me where it is, he said that after the war the nationals had won, and all the shotguns of the whole town had to be hidden there, and that they had covered it with stones, that they did not want it to be known and that he could tell me the place, but that I did not have the capacity to see it. You have to go and keep pulling the threads ... but you're left with that rumour ... that information that comes from so many different places. All legends and myths have a base of knowledge which lies hidden below.

We also visited a well with energetic and healing water, which tasted wonderful!

OUR VISIT TO TREVIÁS with Javier Gonzalez Arias- 22.3.2018 (about 40 km from Avilés)

That same day at around noon, Daniel drove us, together with José Antonio Fernandez (from Madrid), Marcos, and a friend of him and myself to visit my friend Javier González Arias, who I had met two years prior, during a weekend seminar in “Monte Perdido” in the Pyrenees. Since then he had contacted me several times inviting me to come and visit Trevías and what he thinks is a smaller pyramid shaped hill between Balsera and Trevías, about 40 km from Avilés.

Javier told us:

We are very close to the sea. The river that passes below this slope of the pyramid hill, flows north in a straight line at three or four kilometres away it turns slightly north/west to end up in an estuary. Probably in its day there was another sea entrance that had joined with this one. The proof of this is that there is a mound here nearby of about 200 meters of altitude, very short, but in the past, they have discovered it and started to use it as a quarry to build houses. People did not know it, but when you go through the houses, there are carved stones, with many remains of fossils, then the people of the town told us, people who are now in their sixties, when they were children and came to the village school, which are not used any longer, but then, one of the amusements at recess time, was to approach to the quarry that had already stopped being used, and to see who found the most beautiful fossils. And they told me that the teacher of that school had an amazing private collection.

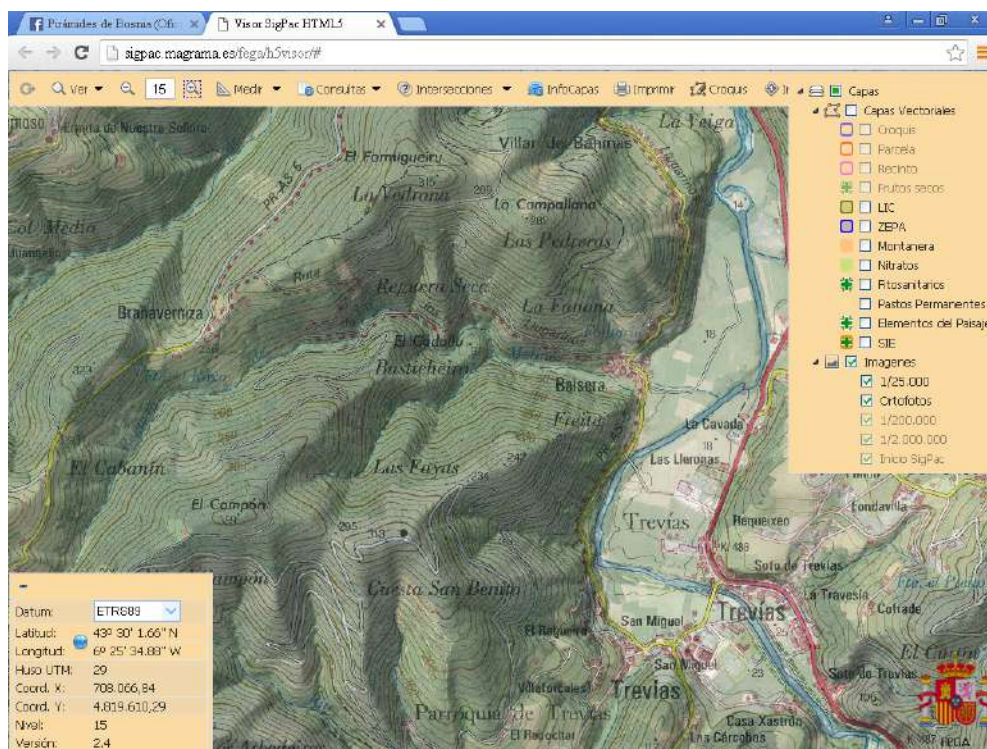

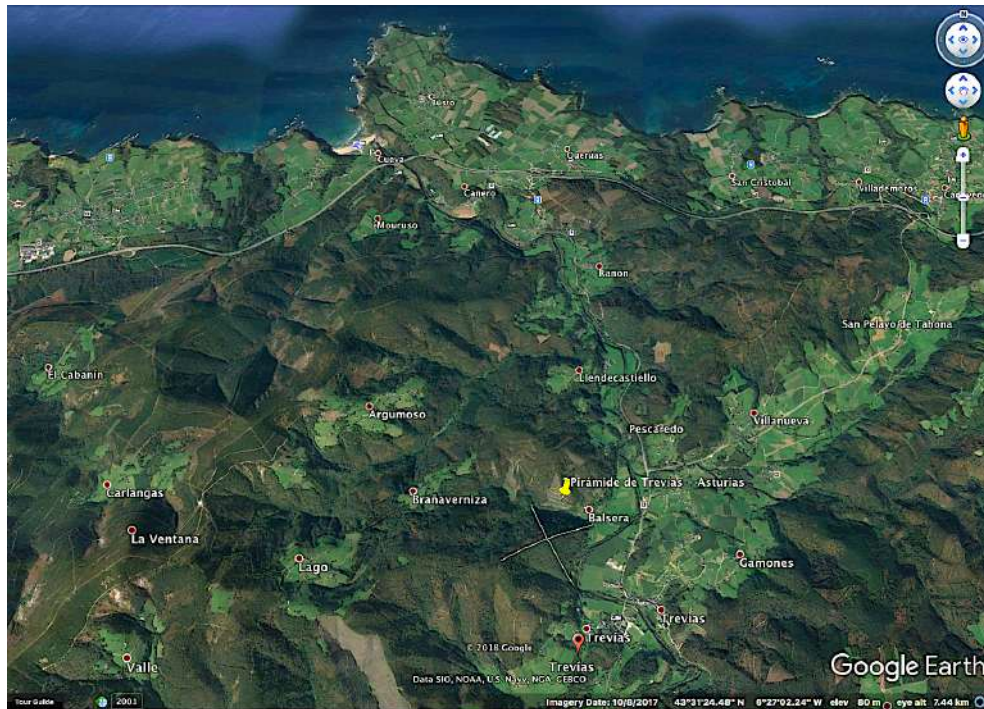

I speculate that, if in ancient times, probably during the famous flood about 12,000 years ago or when it was, there were water formations and those formed that cumulus. I also speculate that the two faces that are not seen from this pyramid shaped mountain, on the back side ... that it is a bit like the southern face of pyramid of the Sun in Bosnia, that was damaged and where lot of sediment was gathered, and therefore does not have that slope so straight. But of course, if you imagine that water has entered from the sea and inundated it in those days, it is easy to imagine, that is was long time under water, apart of the destruction caused by earthquakes in this area. About 20 years ago, there was a small earthquake and others even earlier.

All that together may be the reason that you have not seen all four faces perfectly, if there is something there.

There is a river that when, like now, when it carries a lot of water, it often overflows. That has probably allowed this hillside in its day here to be cleaned, and as it is bringing sediment, those stones that are on that side, could be that the water finished cleaning them. These are some of the more rectangular shaped stones we see alongside the river and the base of the pyramid shaped hill.

And that's the story.
